

Frozone

I have decided to title this work Frozone. The generative nature that this work has reminds me of ice skating, and the ice dust that would kick back when skating. Of course I had to name this after the best ice skating, superhero: Frozone, from The Incredibles. Using the arrow keys, the little dot (whom I like to believe is a little Frozone) moves left, right, up, and down. When moving the arrows left, and right random lines generate, propelling the dot in that certain direction, creating an unique work of art each time you refresh the page.